

Dear ACUHO-I Member:

Welcome back to the 2010-2011 academic year. As student affairs professionals we have a responsibility to leverage assessment to drive improvements on our campuses. Throughout the past twelve years the ACUHO-I/EBI partnership has offered assessments that do just that, while becoming the national standard for campus housing. The ACUHO-I Benchmarking Committee and the assessment experts at EBI have successfully modeled the meaning of partnership and continuous improvement.

As evidence of this continuous improvement philosophy, we have some exciting new features available with the ACUHO-I/EBI assessments this year:

- A new Executive Summary with more visual displays of your data analysis
- Cross Study Analysis enabling you to review and compare results across the multiple assessments
- Packaging for all of our student affairs assessments that provide substantial value to institutions using multiple assessments.

Finally, this year the Benchmarking Committee will focus on improving the presentation of results and incorporating a management tool to capture, manage, and evaluate the impact of improvement initiatives. This is another step toward helping you best utilize assessment results to improve levels of satisfaction, learning, and climate in your residence hall communities.

The results of our assessments have guided the improvement of the student and staff experience at more than 700 campuses. ACUHO-I/EBI assessments are based upon 16 years of research, are grounded in student development theory, and provide results that empower housing professionals to have the greatest positive impact on the quality of the residential experience.

As association president and a longtime consumer of this service, I strongly encourage you to participate in the ACUHO-I/EBI Assessments. Please join our efforts to strengthen the quality of the on-campus living experience for our students and institutions. You can learn more by contacting Glenn Skaggs at gskaggs@webebi.com or by visiting their website at www.webebi.com.

Sincerely,
